Groveland Township – According to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, two men out hunting on Saturday afternoon discovered the remains of a man in an area off Jossman Road.

An initial investigation determined that the victim had apparently shot himself in the head with a shotgun. No identification was found at the time of the discovery, but detectives later uncovered material that matched with evidence from a missing person complaint from Brandon Township dating to early July.

The sheriff's department is awaiting the results of an examination of dental records to determine the identification of the victim while the investigation continues.
