About the Farm to School Directory

The 2025 Farm to School Directory was developed through a partnership between the Macomb County Health Department and Oakland County Health Division. We are grateful for guidance from the Macomb Intermediate School District (MISD), Oakland Schools Intermediate School District (ISD), and school food service directors in Macomb, Oakland and St. Clair Counties.

Why Farm to School?

The purpose of the Farm to School Directory is to connect local farms to schools by providing contact and produce information from farms and producers to school food service programs interested in sourcing local foods.

Farm to school programs connect and enrich communities. They increase farmers' revenue by providing a reliable local market.

Farm to school programs supply schools with fresh fruits and vegetables to provide students with tasty, nutritious meals.

Farm to school programs have a big economic impact! In 2022-2023, Michigan schools spent almost $4,000,000 on local food through the 10 Cents a Meal program.

Getting Started with Farm to School

In your school

- Organize a field trip to a local farm.
- Showcase student posters promoting the program and its importance.
- Announce it is a farm to school meal day over the PA system.

In the cafeteria

- Start with one or two items per month. Adjust menu mix to balance costs.
- Review Putting Michigan Produce on Your Menu for procurement, storage and prep tips.
- Find resources and recipes for local produce at Making Michigan Recipes Work.
- Hold taste tests for new recipes or produce items.
- Use posters or stickers to highlight featured produce throughout the cafeteria, lunch line and menu.

In the classroom

- Have farmers visit the classroom and talk about how food is grown.
- Find a Michigan Agriculture in the Classroom or Food Corps lesson plan that ties to your current lesson.
- Have the students make farm to school posters and write why they should eat local fruits and veggies.

In the community

- Connect with your school's PTA/PTO and share about your program.
- Host a farm to school community event. Invite farmers, parents, students and local business owners.
- Join or learn more about the Michigan Farm to Institution Network or sign up for the newsletter from the National Farm to School Network.

Procurement

The easiest way to purchase directly from a local farm is micropurchasing. You can use this method of procurement when the aggregate value of your purchase is under $15,000. This allows schools to purchase supplies or services without soliciting competitive bids, if the school considers the price reasonable.

If your purchases will exceed $15,000 in aggregate value, you must use other procurement methods. USDA's Procuring Local Foods for Child Nutrition Programs is a complete procurement guide.

For procurement help, see Purchasing Michigan Products: A Step-by-Step Guide. The School Nutrition Association provides a Procurement Training Zone for members to locate resources and trainings. Michigan Department of Education also has tips for success and guidance on procurement procedures for USDA Child Nutrition Programs.

PROCUREMENT TYPE	AMOUNT	CONSIDERATIONS
Micropurchasing	under $15,000	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• No competitive bid required</li><li>• Distribute equitably among qualified suppliers</li><li>• Develop written specifications and required terms, conditions, and contract provisions</li><li>• Document all purchases</li></ul>
Other procurement types	$15,000+ in aggregate value	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Requires a competitive bid</li><li>• May use geographic preference as a criteria</li></ul>

Farm to School Safety

These are some initial considerations for farm to school food safety practices. This is not an all-inclusive set of food safety practices for local food.

On-farm food safety

No food safety certification is required for farms to sell directly to schools (unless your district requires it). However, it is important to understand your suppliers' on-farm food safety practices. Get familiar with on-farm safety through the Center for Regional Food Systems' Farm to Institution Food Safety Basics video series.

Even if you are unable to visit the farms from which you would like to purchase, we recommend you have a conversation about on-farm food safety practices. This checklist will help you start the conversation with potential sellers.

Certifications

Some farms may have on-farm safety certifications, like "GAP certified" or "MDARD-inspected." Each farm or producer's certifications, if any, are listed in each directory entry.

Transportation and delivery

How food is transported is an important consideration in keeping local foods safe.

The Putting Michigan Produce on Your Menu guide has a list of transportation and delivery-related items to inspect for safe transport in the 'Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Food Safety' section.

Farms and Producers

The farms and producers listed in the following pages confirmed in 2025 that they are interested in selling to schools in Macomb, Oakland and/or St. Clair Counties.

Each farm's entry contains the following:

Overview and contact information

This includes the farm's address, website, telephone number, email address and general production season.

Delivery information

This section tells you whether a farm offers delivery. If so, you can see if there is a minimum order (quantity or dollar amount) required, and how far they are willing to drive.

Payment methods and documentation

See whether farms accept cash, credit, or can invoice you for payment. If you need a W-9 form to issue payment, this section will also tell you if a farm can provide one.

Safety certifications

See if a farm has any safety certifications here. This might include MDARD-inspected or GAP (Good Agricultural Practices) certified. Note that certifications showing how the food is grown, like "Certified Organic" or "biodynamic," do not relate to safety and are not listed here.

Produce offered

See both what produce is available and what times of year it's growing. Items are available during months highlighted in orange on the calendar grid. Unless otherwise noted, produce is whole and unwashed.

Key

The Farm to School Directory contains 25 farms and producers with a variety of products for your cafeteria. Look for the following icons to quickly identify a farm or producer with specific capabilities.

Great for salad bars

These farms have smaller quantities but big selection! Look for heirloom varieties and unusual colors to introduce to your kids on the salad bar. These growers may also be a good option for culturally relevant products.

Large quantities

Need onions or apples for a district-wide event, or want to pilot a new food product for your regular rotation? Farms and producers marked with this item are your go-to.

Season extension

Farms and producers marked with this icon have products available in the winter or early spring. They may have cold storage, greenhouses or hoopouses or use a hydroponic or other indoor growing system.

Dry beans

New for the 2025-2026 directory! Dry beans are available from many farmers in Michigan's thumb region.

Minimally processed (washed, cut, and frozen)

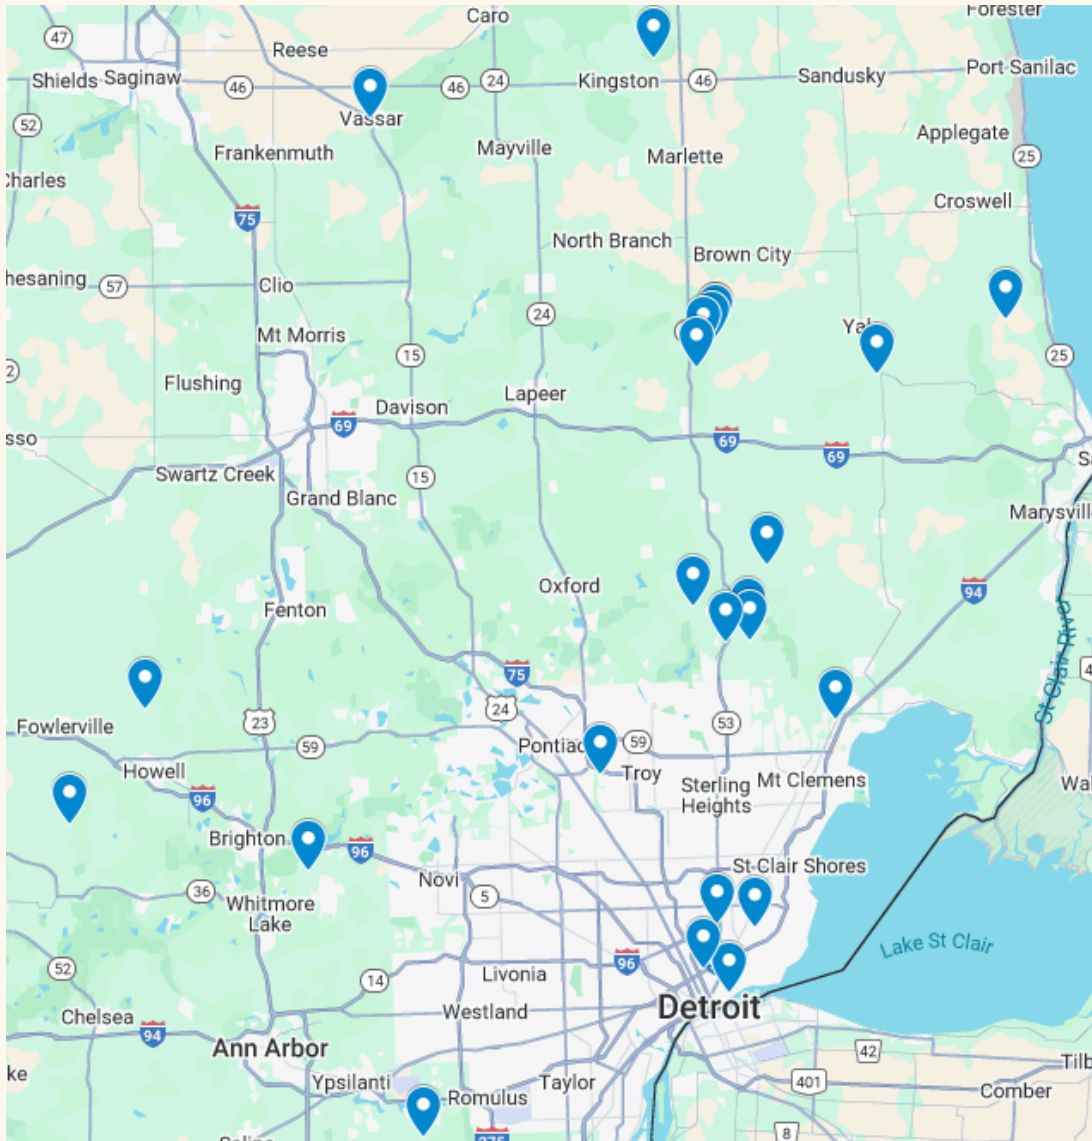

Looking to save time? This icon means products are ready to use. Look for items like sliced apples, washed salad mix or frozen berries.

Marketing materials available

These may include posters, stickers, signs and digital graphics.

Where are farms and producers located?
